

URL: <https://stvp.stanford.edu/clips/inventory-in-the-cloud>

Joseph DeSimone, co-founder and CEO of 3D manufacturing startup Carbon, discusses the revolutionary potential of 3D printing by describing how surgeons may one day be able to order implantable devices on demand. Such immediacy would eliminate the need for costly inventories and perhaps finally lead to the technology's widespread adoption, according to DeSimone.

Transcript

English subtitles are not available for this media..